Providend Ltd is an independent financial advisory company licensed by the Monetary Authority of Singapore. We are pioneers in financial advisory in Singapore and have been giving our clients the most honest, independent and competent advice since 2003. Since 10 years ago, Providend has been championing transparency by charging a fee and returning commissions from all financial products back to their clients and remains the only licensed financial adviser that does so today. However, for this insurance planning service, while commissions are being returned, there is no need to pay an upfront fee.
